SFMTA to Change Sunday Parking Meter Operations

San Francisco to repeal parking meter operations in most neighborhoods

San Francisco— Starting on Sunday, July 6, parking meters will no longer operate on Sundays throughout most of San Francisco. This change is the result of the approval of the SFMTA's fiscal year 2015-2016 (July 1, 2014 – June 30, 2016) budget, which repealed operating meters on Sundays throughout the city. Citywide Sunday meter operation began January 2013.

“Starting this Sunday, we are making San Francisco a little more affordable for our families and residents who want to get around our City and spend time at our parks, do a little shopping or visit one of our world class neighborhoods,” said Mayor Ed Lee. “While we give people a break at the meters on Sundays, we are aggressively pursuing critical funding for our entire transportation network, including a $500 million transportation bond this November that will invest in our City’s transportation system for pedestrians, bicyclists, transit riders and drivers alike, all without raising property taxes.”

Pre-January 2013 Meter Schedule

As a result of the change, most parking meters in San Francisco will only operate Monday through Saturday, reverting to their pre-January 2013 operating schedule.

Prior to 2013, some meters in the city operated on Sundays and will continue to do so. These include meters within the Port of San Francisco’s jurisdiction, including the Fisherman’s Wharf area, and meters at the following seven off-street metered lots:

- 8th Avenue at Clement Street
- 9th Avenue at Clement Street
- Geary Boulevard at 21st Avenue
- 18th Avenue at Geary Boulevard
- 8th Avenue at Irving Street
- Pierce Street Garage (between Lombard and Chestnut streets)
- Felton Street at San Bruno Avenue

Special Events Meter Schedule

Parking meters around AT&T Park will continue to operate on Sundays during special events, such as Giants games. The next game affected is Sunday, July 13.

For the first three Sundays in July, SFMTA Parking Control Officers will place informational flyers on vehicles parked at expired meters in areas where Sunday meters will remain operational to remind the public of these changes.

When in doubt, customers are reminded to check the parking meter for days and hours of operation.

Note: Areas where on-street meters will remain operational on Sundays are highlighted on the .pdf map in purple.

Established by voter proposition in 1999, the SFMTA, a department of the City and County of San Francisco, oversees the Municipal Railway (Muni), parking and traffic, bicycling, walking and taxis. With five modes of transit, Muni has approximately 700,000 passenger boardings each day. Over 1 million people get around this city each day and rely on the SFMTA to ensure safe and reliable travel by transit, walking, bicycling, taxi and driving.
