What is a Permanent Slow Street?

Time

- Traffic changes would extend beyond State of Emergency
- Authorization not tied to COVID emergency

Materials

- Part of the neighborhood's lasting infrastructure
- Part of the city's overall transportation network

STEP 1

Evaluate the Slow Street and Determine Support for Permanence

Using the Slow Streets evaluation process, deploy resident and user surveys to assess the temporary Slow Street's effectiveness, uncover operational issues, learn about the community's perceptions and attitudes toward the Slow Street, and determine support for permanence beyond the pandemic

Proceed on path to permanence for the Slow Street beyond the COVID-19 pandemic

✗

STEP 2

Community Outreach

Initiate a public outreach process to engage with residents and stakeholders on additional permanent treatments beyond traffic diverters and signage to improve safety for all users of the street and further enhance the Slow Street

STEP 3

Design Permanent Slow Street

Using the feedback received in Step 2, complete the design for the permanent Slow Street. Review the design with other SFMTA departments and other city agencies through the SFMTA's Transportation Staff Advisory Committee (TASC) process and refine if-needed

Additional design features may not be added based on community feedback from outreach. Step 3 may just entail preparing plans to swap out the existing Type III barricade treatment used for traffic diversion with the new and more durable barricade and signage configuration. This step also includes preparing the legislative materials to establish permanence of the Slow Street

Design revisions not needed

STEP 5

Implementation

Work with SFMTA shops to swap out the old Type III barricades with the new more durable traffic diverter and sign configuration. If warranted, install additional traffic safety features

STEP 4

Approve Permanent Slow Street

Present the permanent Slow Street designation and design to the SFMTA Board of Directors and obtain their approval
