Muni Launches Shuttle Service for East Bay Commuters

Muni offering early morning bus service to accommodate BART service changes

San Francisco, CA - The San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency (SFMTA), which operates Muni, will be offering early morning bus service beginning Monday, February 11th between the Daly City BART Station and the Temporary Transbay Terminal as BART shifts its start of service on weekdays from 4 to 5 a.m. Muni will be running our part of the new service known as the 714 BART Early Bird Shuttle every 15 minutes between the Daly City BART Station and the Temporary Transbay Terminal starting at 4:05 a.m. weekdays from Daly City BART, and at 4:45 a.m. from the Temporary Transbay Terminal.

This service change will last for the duration of BART's seismic retrofit of the Transbay Tube, projected to be 3.5 years. Opening BART an hour later is expected to speed up the project by at least 25 percent and provide a minimum 12 percent cost savings.

Customers going to BART stations south of Daly City can connect at the Daly City station. Customers going to East Bay BART stations may connect to shuttles at the Temporary Transbay Terminal. Muni customers who transfer to BART at the Civic Center, Powell, Montgomery and Embarcadero stations will need to go to the Temporary Transbay Terminal or 16th Street BART Station to access BART Early Bird Shuttles to their destinations. Muni Metro stations will maintain regular hours and service during this BART service change.

More information on the shuttle service can be found on our website.
